On March 19, 2021 at 8PM EST, art collaborative peasoupATTACK will showcase singer-songwriter Jackson Ulmer's latest pre-recording during a live virtual release party presented by Smoke Room Sessions.

Kimthy Nguyen, Co-Founder and Art Director of peasoupATTACK, is thrilled to partner with musician Jackson Ulmer to create a brand new web series: Smoke Room Sessions, as a platform for local artists to connect, collaborate and perform. Nguyen and Ulmer have always been fascinated with the connections between visual arts and music and the endless possibilities it can create.

They believe both music and art capture our senses and emotions in multiple ways. Their aim is to create an environment which intertwines these forms of expression in a manner unique to the musician and visual artist to create an experience to be shared with the community.

The two have envisioned a multimedia space where local musicians and visual artists are encouraged to exhibit their work virtually alongside one another to captivate audiences in an on-going web series. The pairing of musicians and visual artists is a thoughtful and meticulous selection process. The creative team ensures each artist is coupled with music that creates a 360-degree experience of visuals and music. Color palettes, lyrics, locales, and emotions are each examined to create something incredibly unique.

Kimthy Nguyen and Jackson Ulmer state: "The idea [of Smoke Room Sessions] stems from our love and respect for NPR Tiny Desk, Mahogany Sessions, and Audiotree Live and combining it with the experience of an art gallery. We want to take a simple "session" and elevate it to something engrossed with character not yet seen before in this format. We will ensure the art work in each session is not treated as a background piece. As we are filming, we will find creative ways to allow the musician and the art piece to correlate.

We invite you to immerse yourself in peasoupATTACK's new direction with our virtual launch party for our new collaborative web series, Smoke Room Sessions.
